Seigel & Associates Broadens its Tax Offerings to Include Tax Consulting and Compliance Services

NEW YORK – (March 30, 2009) – Seigel & Associates, LLC, announced today that it has added tax consulting and compliance services to its existing FIN 48 tax reserve determination and FAS 109 tax services. After providing these new services to clients on a trial basis, the response has been overwhelmingly positive. These services are now available immediately through Seigel & Associates staff of highly regarded and experienced tax professionals.

“Clients are finding that in the current economic climate it makes sense to consolidate their FIN 48, FAS 109, tax consulting, and tax compliance work with one firm, particularly with a firm that does not provide auditing or financial statement preparation or review work,” said Stuart Seigel, Chairman and CEO of Seigel & Associates and a former Chief Counsel of the IRS. “This not only saves money and results in a higher quality and more efficient approach to tax work, but also eliminates any potential conflicts of interest. Conflict of interest avoidance has become a particularly sensitive issue in today’s business environment,” he added.

Seigel & Associates is particularly well-positioned to provide this broader range of tax services to companies. Its independence and objectivity, combined with the expertise of its staff, offers companies the best protection against risks from potentially biased judgments and from outside questioning. As a relatively small firm, Seigel & Associates can ensure that this high level of expertise is committed to every client engagement so that clients are assured that they are dealing directly with the “A Team.” Thus, clients know that the right level of expertise is deployed directly on their specific issues, enhancing the overall engagement experience.
